REPORTER ARRESTED IN MEXICO FOR 'FAKING'

Huerta Holds Newspaper Correspondent Who Sent Story That Americans Applied 'Ley de fuga.'

HUERTA'S CAPITAL IS STIRRED

Mexico City, July 12.—Great interest is being taken in the case of Fred Boalt, an American newspaper correspondent under technical arrest for sending untrue and sensational dispatches to his paper. El Imparcial prints the statement that Boalt has asserted that the American newspaperman had been arrested because he had applied the "Ley de fuga."

Chicago, July 12.—The article sent by Fred L. Boalt to the Newspaper Enterprise Association which caused Boalt's arrest and the order for his deportation and now threatens to develop into a Congressional investigation was, in part, as follows:

"Vera Cruz, Mexico.—When the Americans took Vera Cruz an ensign, in his student days perhaps the best full back in the city ever had, had command of a squad of men who took many prisoners. The prisoners were corralled in a room. At a word from the ensign they were released and told to scurry for the next corner. Those who reached it in safety, in the opinion of the ensign, deserved to live."

"But very few did. The ensign applied the 'Ley de fuga'—the law of flight. The law of flight is not nice. The rules of civilized warfare forbid the application of the law of flight. But war is war, and one American naval officer did apply the law of flight. He admits it, boasts about it. Curiously enough, his friends applaud him for it. 'Hundreds of American army and navy officers and men know that this ensign and his men applied the forbidden law of flight—made sport of prisoners of war and even noncombatants, giving them a flying start and 'potting' them as they fled. 'I have been told that it was fun to see them run. 'When I was a boy I had a bulldog who applied the law of flight. 'The trick was for the dog to catch, if he could, all the rats before they reached the wall rail fence which surrounded the pasture. Once through the fence there was no catching the rats—because they lost themselves in tall grass. 'I remember that the first rat that left the trap never got more than a foot from it. The second ran a yard, perhaps, and so on. The last rat always tripped desperately to reach the fence. 'But it was very seldom that even the last rat escaped that bulldog's jaws. I imagine that my bulldog and the young ensign, or former football star, whom I have mentioned, both of whom applied the law of flight, are somewhat alike."

KEEP COIN HERE, HIS BATTLE CRY

Bowdler Comments on Bill to Tax Foreign Husbands of United States Girls.

FEED GREEDY PARASITES

Ohio Lawmaker May Appeal to American Daddies to Keep Wealth from Daughters.

Further expression of his views on preventing "fawning foreign nobles" from reviving their bank accounts by marrying our young American heiresses was given last night by Representative Stanley E. Bowdler, who introduced a bill in Congress last week to heavily tax the fortunes of those women who buy titles.

The bill as introduced in the House imposes an annual assessment of 25 per cent of the entire fortune involved. This Representative Bowdler hopes will prevent women from "abandoning American homes, American institutions and ideals for foreign titles."

Mr. Bowdler, who has considered the question at length and given much time and thought to drawing up his bill, said last night:

Hereditary Attraction.
"I venture to say that considerable agitation will be brought about by this foreign marriage before many days. 'Our people have not reached that degree of philosophic calm where they are perfectly indifferent whether our millions go abroad to feed parasites, who care nothing for our institutions, or remain at home for use among our own people. 'Hundreds of millions have gone abroad, and the movement is becoming more rapid. Multitudes of patriotic women view the conduct of their sisters with shame and alarm; and many have so spoken to me. 'I make bold to say that if the men of America, who have made large fortunes, had sought princesses, duchesses, and noble ladies, as our women have done among the males of the nobility, this nation today would be approaching rapidly a great crisis.

Cites Recent Cases.
"While I have thought over this bill for some time, its production was hastened by two of Cincinnati's young women marrying within a short period French titles. I refer to the Misses Stallo. They carried off about three million a-piece. 'If law cannot stop this by the process of taxation (I think it can, and that this bill will pass) then, the American fathers of this country, who have wealth gotten by the labor of American workmen, will see to it that in their wills the female shares are left in a way that cuts off those who marry fawning foreign nobles, who are out for cash. 'Bowdler emphatically denies that he is a violent anti-suffragist. 'I have not challenged Capt. Hobson or any one else to a nationwide debate on woman suffrage," he declares. "I am not a violent anti-suffragist. My belief is that women should vote on this question themselves and I do not believe that men should debate can settle women's questions."

THUNDER ON MARSE HENRY.
Louisville's Famous Editor Still Full of "Pep."

Chicago, Ill., July 12.—Booming out from Louisville, comes once more the thunder of Col. Henry Watterson, the Battle God in the Louisville Courier-Journal's editorial chair. Ringing of the welkin is once more to be accomplished by this thunderer of days gone by, according to predictions of many Western journals. The Chicago Herald, heralding the approach of the Kentucky colonel, says today: "Marse Henry" is again the "Marse Henry" of other days. He is again a prophet once more in glory. And over all the length and breadth of the land runs the wish that, wayward as he may be at times, his "come-back" may last throughout his life and his life throughout at least our generation."

FURIES' OUTRAGES COSTLY.

Damage in England by Militants Placed at $2,000,000.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.
London, July 12.—In an attempt to estimate the aggregate loss from the militant campaign the Morning Post today tabulates every suffragette outrage against property since the present campaign began in February, 1913. The material damage done in that period by the militants, the Post calculates, approaches $2,000,000. This sum does not include damage to works of art, historical buildings, etc., whose value is not estimated.

The arson squad has fired eight churches, including two ancient ones which were entirely destroyed, exploded bombs in six churches and seven other buildings, fired thirty-six houses and attempted to fire eighteen, fired twenty-two race tracks, stands and similar structures, tried to burn twenty more, burned nineteen stations, schools and timber yards, made four attacks on pictures in public galleries, and damaged 4,000 letters.

HITS QUEEN WITH BALL.

Militant's Missile Lands in Lap of Mary, Driving with King.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.
Edinburgh, July 12.—The King and Queen, who have been dogged by suffragettes throughout their Scottish tour, had another unpleasant experience on their last day in the highlands. When their majesties were approaching at St. Giles' Cathedral here for the morning service today, Miss Olive Walker, a well-known Dundee militant, broke her way through the line of spectators and threw a rubber ball, marked "Forcible feeding," into the royal carriage.

CZARINA'S ADVISER SHOT.

Famous Russian Monk Said to Have Been Mortally Wounded.

Special Cable to The Washington Herald.
St. Petersburg, July 12.—A private telegram to the St. Petersburg Courier from Pokrovske, Tobolsk province, states that the famous monk, Rasputin, has been shot by a woman and is believed to be mortally injured. Details are lacking. Rasputin holds a position of great influence at the imperial court. He is the czar's private seer and adviser. Court circles were stirred recently when one of the czar's gentlemen-in-waiting threw Rasputin down the palace steps after a dispute with him. The courtier was severely disciplined by the czar.

GREEK CHARGE SCORES CARNEGIE FOUNDATION

Asserts that Investigators' Report on Balkan Wars Is Inexcusably Partial to Bulgaria.

SAYS FACTS WERE IGNORED

In an official statement issued here yesterday vigorously assailing the recent report of the Carnegie Peace Foundation's investigation of the atrocities of the Balkan wars, Alexander Vouras, Charge d'Affaires for Greece, declares the report has intensified instead of allayed the Greek conviction that the investigators were prejudiced against Greece and acted as special pleaders for Bulgaria.

The objection of Vouras is that the commission lays upon Greece responsibility for outrages of which Greece was in no way guilty and tries to emphasize accusations against Greece while denying in toto or minimizing notorious Bulgarian atrocities. Mr. Vouras says in part:

"Either a complete reading of the Carnegie Peace Foundation's report on the Balkan wars outrages or a glance at practically any part of it must convince any fair-minded person that an inexcusable partiality to Bulgaria prevails throughout its entirety. For instance, on page 20, the report says: 'The main facts on which we must insist is that the Greek army inaugurated the second war by the deliberate burning of a Bulgarian town.' The town to which this reference is made is Kilkish, which was one of the most brilliant victories won by the Greeks during that war, and decided the fate of the war. The Greek army, by its self-sacrificing and courageous action, captured the town of Kilkish, which was held by the Bulgarians. This was done by the Bulgarians."

"Neither the commission has been clever enough to discover facts that did not come to the attention of the official investigators of the European powers, or the commission has stupidly allowed itself to be imposed upon by special interests. When the evidence of Bulgarian crimes is irrefutable, the commission endeavors to put the responsibility for these crimes on the Turkish population. On the other hand, however, testimony given against the Bulgarians by absolutely disinterested war correspondents and foreign newspaper editors is either discredited outright or cleverly minimized by the commission."

Cumberland, Md., July 12.—J. G. Ramsey, a business man of Parsons, W. Va., is alleged, eloped with Rev. W. G. ELOPERS KIDNAP JUDGE.

Memphis, Tenn., July 12.—Kidnaping a more or less willing magistrate in a big seven-passenger automobile in which were crowded seven young people, seemingly bent on a merry pleasure ride, every member of the party pledged to secrecy and then driving about the city for more than half an hour in search of a break spot to hold the ceremony, were a few incidents attendant upon the wedding of John Keigher and Miss Ethel Watkins, both of Memphis.

After a search through the parks of the city and through the business section without suitable results, the party finally decided on Confederate Park. Overlooking the river, as the most appropriate scene for the wedding, the party alighted from the big machine another search ensued, but in a more restricted area. First secluded nooks were looked for, but seven young people, the sun dial failed to supply the setting, and finally some one suggested the big canon reposing in the park. This seemed to supply the need, and the bride and bridegroom took up places on each side of the old war relic. With scores of persons packing back and forth within a few minutes of the ceremony was read in a low voice by Magistrate J. P. Cashin. Even when the wedding was over and the party had returned to their machine, no one outside of the immediate few realized that a wedding had taken place.

WARBURG ATTACK LAID TO 'WALL STREET WOLF'

President's Friends Trace Opposition to Federal Reserve Candidate to David Lamar.

Special to The Washington Herald.
New York, July 12.—The World today printed a statement that President Wilson's friends have traced the anonymous attack upon Paul M. Warburg to David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street." "Two years ago," says the World, "Lamar was prevented by the World from leading a United States Senator into making an attack on a corporation in order that he could profit from the effect of that attack on the stock market. Later, he tried to force Congress to investigate Attorney General McReynolds an aide dissolution of the Union Pacific. He stands now indicted for impersonating a member of Congress in spreading this circular attack by Herman J. Schulteis, counsel for the so-called Anti-Trust League, and Henry Martin, of New York, secretary of the league. The Anti-Trust League has dug up the records, giving the dates on which Mr. Warburg took his papers of citizenship. These, the league hopes to offer to the hands of members of the opposition in the Senate in a few days. "Friends of President Wilson are jubilant over the alleged running down of the source of this attack. They assert it will be a boomerang; that any Senator who will accept the suggestions of the circular must alien himself with Lamar and his associates."

Also Tired—Too Much Steak (Strolls, Double-decker!)

Special to The Washington Herald.
New York, July 12.—John Barleycorn is not responsible for that tired feeling the bone of policemen, according to Dr. Henry P. Deforest, medical examiner for the Municipal civil service commission. In an article in the New York Medical Journal the doctor says most of the blue coats' ills are due to too great an indulgence in sirloin steaks and kindred comestibles. "Police men's tendency to gout, rheumatism, and chronic dyspepsia is due to their heavy, hearty, and irregular meals," Dr. Deforest asserts.

MRS. MARY L. NAYLOR TO BE BURIED TODAY

District Attorney's Office Reaches Definite Conclusion that William Poland Murdered Woman.

Following investigation yesterday of the murder of Mrs. Mary L. Naylor, the District attorney's office has reached the definite conclusion that William Poland is the murderer. John Naylor, the husband of the murdered woman, has been freed and Poland is being held for trial. Funeral services for Mrs. Naylor will be held today at the home of her mother, Mrs. M. A. Mitchell, 713 F street southwest, and will be followed by burial in Congressional Cemetery. The story constructed by detectives who have been working on the case as an explanation of the tragedy is as follows: Mrs. Naylor was deserted by her husband, forced to work under unsatisfactory conditions, and later was refused help from her friends. She finally found shelter in the house where she was afterward killed. While there she met Poland, who had money and was willing to spend it on her. When his money was gone he became dependent at the thought of having to leave her and jealous of the possibility of her husband's return. This condition of mind is, in the theory of the police, the motive for the murder. Poland is in the Red Cross ward of the District jail and refuses to be interviewed.

AFTER "HINKY DINK'S" SCALP.

Judge Declares He'll Make Chicago Leader a Private Citizen.
Chicago, July 12.—Michael Kenna, Democratic leader with an international reputation, has taken the name of Judge John E. Owens off the regular Democratic ticket because he is a county judge and was elected through the influence of W. R. Hearst and Mayor Harrison. "Hinky" is a friend of Roger C. Sullivan and the merry war in the Democratic camp in Illinois is fighting both Hearst and Harrison. Judge Owens, when told that his name was not on the slate of the Democratic "regulars," said: "There is just one man in Chicago I am going to nail before I get through. His name is 'Mike' Kenna. 'If I am re-elected I will do everything in my power to drive that trimmer out of public life. I will use every bit of power I may have to defeat him next spring. 'I am going the limit against this man. I will go into his ward in this present primary campaign and I will tell the voters of that ward from the platform why this man should be driven from their midst. 'I'll leave no stone unturned to get Kenna. He will be a private citizen before I get through with him. Alderman "Hinky Dink" replied: "He can come into my ward and go the limit."

COME AGAIN, GENERAL!

Maj. Gen. Tanaka, the Japanese military expert, will leave Washington this morning after a brief and hurried visit to the Japanese Embassy.
